Dear Christy,

①By now you've no doubt heard about Chandra's surprise party and are probably wondering why you ②weren't invited. Chandra certainly was; as soon as she arrived, she asked me, "Where's Christy?" Your absence ③from the guest list is entirely my fault, and I'm truly sorry for my thoughtlessness. I know how much Chandra values your friendship, and I certainly meant no offense. Even now, I still don't understand how I ④could have overlooked your name. It's a case, I suppose, of missing the obvious, ⑤not of seeing what's right before your eyes. Can you ever forgive me?

Sincerely,

Lisa

Dear Mrs. Rabinowitz,

It was very ①kind of you to offer (A)[to provide / providing] refreshments at this month's councilmeeting. Unfortunately, due to a conflict at the community center, we've had to reschedule the meeting for September 17. I realize you've probably started baking some of your famous pies ②already, and I wanted to offer my sincerest apologies for the ③later notice of our cancellation. Your contributions to the meeting are always (B)[much / very] appreciated, and I feel ④terrible for the change of date and ⑤inconvenience we've caused you. If you'd still like to provide refreshments for the meeting, great. If not, I understand completely and will be happy to call on (C)[other / another] neighbor.

Regards,

Martin Williams

Dear Mayor Stanton,

I've recently been informed ①that you are proposing a plan to renovate our city's great historic landmark, the Silverlight Theater.

(A) Your proposed plan to increase the theater's seating capacity to attract larger audiences and ②brings more world-class theatrical performances to the city may be financially sound.

(B) I strongly believe that we should not sacrifice the beauty and history of our city ③for short-sighted financial gain.

(C) But everything I've heard and read in recent weeks leads me to believe that such a renovation would destroy the theater's architecture, ④which is among the best of its kind in the nation.

(D) With that in mind, I urge you to reconsider this renovation plan and to explore a _____(e)s that will preserve the character of the Silverlight Theater while ⑤securing its financial stability.

Sincerely,
Kate Hendricks
